BLOOD" TO BE THEME OF N. E. RHEUMATISM SOCIETY'S FALL MEETING AT BETHEL

Medicine in training some of its biggest research guns on a study of human blood in an effort to learn more about the nation's baffling "rheumatism."

This theme will be the subject of an address here Friday, October 4, before a fall meeting of the New England Rheumatism Society at Bethel Inn.

Dr. William S. Clark of Cleveland, Ohio, associate professor of medicine at Western Reserve University, will give the principal talk.

According to Dr. Clark, human blood tells an arthritis story of its own. Although blood tests are not infallible they tend to show up the presence of rheumatoid arthritis, one of the most crippling forms of the disease.

The majority of patients to affect possess an abnormal protein in their serum.

Research into the nature and origin of this protein may lead scientists up to and over the twin hurdles arthritis now presents: the cause of and a cure for the disease.

Now in its tenth year, the New England Rheumatism Society is made up of 200 physicians and surgeons all specialists in the study and treatment of Rheumatic Diseases. The officers: Dr. Phillip P. Thompson, Portland, Maine; President; Dr. Theodore A. Potter, of Boston, Vice-President; and Dr. James D. C. Cottam of Marblehead, Secretary-Treasurer.

ideas from other editors

From the Carson Independent-News, Carson, Pa.: Government officials in the Federal Trade Commission are interested in drug prices and have sent questionnaires to drug manufacturers, designed to produce the answer to questions which the FTC and the general public want answered.

For one thing, the Government wants to know why the cost of certain well-known drugs have remained high for years after they were introduced. It is common practice for new drugs to be priced rather high when they are first offered because the supply is limited and production is just beginning.

However, in the case of many antibiotics prices have been held up and there is general suspicion that the public is being gouged.

The drug business is a billion-dollar industry in the United States and if there is any one industry in which profits should be moderate, or reasonable, $\frac{1}{2}$ is this one. Americans depend on medicines and drugs to safeguard their health and it is a poor commentary on the American scene if drug manufacturers are, as some claim, extracting ridiculous profits at the expense of the American public because there is little understanding of the drug industry and little information or comprehension of its workings.

From the Houston Herald, Dothan, Alabama: Some time ago a group of retail executives was received by the President at the White House. The group's spokesman told the Chief Magistrate that retailing's increasing sales volume and rising capital expansion programs are a reflection of confidence in the sound growth of this country's economy. He added: "We sold—and will continue to sell—the products which manufacturers have produced and made it possible for them to continue their operations at peak levels."

This particular group consisted of representatives of retail fields other than foods. The food retailers, chain and independent, are doing exactly the same thing on behalf of the country's farmers, processors and others.

This brings up a point we are apt to overlook. We watch the industrial production figures, in order to see how American enterprise and the nation fare. But the status of retailing is every bit as important. No producer could produce for long without a sufficient number of buyers of his wares. If the goods didn't move he'd have no choice but to shut down.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The schools are in session again throughout the country. This in itself may give special interest to a talk which Samuel B. Pettengill, a former Congressman and a well-known writer on public affairs, made some time ago before the Cum Laude Society of the Vermont Academy.

Mr. Pettengill's theme is that the essence of life is struggle. He takes a dim view of that commonly-held attitude which causes parents to try to make life easier for their offspring than it was for them. And he takes the dimmest possible view of what is generally known as the welfare state, with all the expensive buffers it attempts to place between people and adversity. He says: "In recent years, society has gone 'nut' on the pell-mell cult of 'security,' guaranteed by government. In short, a nation of parasites. The illusion of the age is that people can vote themselves rich. It is a superstition that 'social security' depends on the promises of politicians, not on the character, competence and courage of men. It is a fable and a fraud that the out-pot of society can be greater than the in-pot of individuals."

Going on from this, Mr. Pettengill says it is woefully wrong when, for example, labor unions say, in effect, to their members, "Take it easy. Do no more than enough to stay on the payroll." And he is deeply concerned over the fact that young people, in applying for their first jobs, often ask such questions as these: "When will I begin to draw a pension? How many coffee breaks in a day? How many paid holidays? If I worked more than 40 hours...do I get time-and-a-half?"

Mr. Pettengill cites the point of view of a number of distinguished men who exalted struggle above almost everything else. One is Emanuel Lasker, for many years world champion at the most difficult of all games, chess. Lasker, who had shown brilliance as a mathematician and philosopher, was asked why he had given so much of his life to this game. He answered: "The chessboard is a symbol of life of all life. The essence of life is struggle. Take struggle out of chess, or out of life, and what is left? In chess I have found happiness." Mr. Pettengill's own advice to parents follows from this: "Don't take struggle out of your children's lives."

A famous American is also quoted. President Theodore Roosevelt. His philosophy was described in these words: "I wish to preach not the doctrine of ignoble ease, but the doctrine of the strenuous life." And his wish for himself was: "Let me wear out, not rust out." His appeal was always to the strong side of men—never to the soft and weak.

To quote Mr. Pettengill once more: "Avoid struggle and life becomes sterile, rapid and meaningless. Our mental hospitals are being filled with thousands of neurotics, many of whom feel inadequate to meet life because they were protected from taking the bumps in childhood." He ends his talk with a verse from a poem of the frontier:

"I dream no dream of a nurseryland state."

"That spoon is out my food."

"Nothin' about heart sings in its strife with fate."

"For the toll and the arrest are good."

ILLUSTRATED BULLETIN DESCRIBES CONSERVATION PRACTICES IN MAINE

Maine farmers describe 18 different soil and water conservation practices carried out on their farms in a new Extension Service bulletin. The Soil Conservation Service and Extension is publishing Extension Bulletin 487, "Get Your Hand in Soil Conservation." The 37 photographs illustrate conservation practices on Maine farms. The attractive publication is the work of L. Russell Albright, State and conservation agent, N.W. and Rockwood. Extension editor, Raymonde, Extension editor, Gloucester, Maine. Copies may be obtained from county agents of the Extension Service or technicians of the SCS. They are also available from the Bulletin Office, Extension Service, University of Maine, Orono.

The editor reported the three steps that he had taken out of the stock book and had the second mark he had had since.

A college student once asked his chapter, "Tell me one thing. Does God know my name?"

What do you think? It's a good dog can tell us apart." "The good shepherd knows his sheep." John L. Brown, Publisher.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The school bell has rung, and once again youngsters from 5 to 18 are eye-deep in books.

This calls to mind an article written in the June issue of "Blue and Gold," which is put out by students at Gould. This particular article was written following an interview with Miss Eva Bean, Alumni Secretary, in which she recalled school days past.

One not-too-ancient practice of which she approved was "compulsory study hours on week nights for town students, as well as for dormitory students."

Several parents, and non-parents, have expressed the opinion that it might be a good idea to have this old rule reinstated.

Probably study hours is only one of many problems that parents would like to discuss.

For example: What are we as a community doing for our teenagers, socially?

It would seem that the P.T.A. is the only organized group in town that might have enough interest to promote a program along these lines.

If you, as parents, would like such a program, why not talk it over with your P. T. A. officers or program committee.

If enough of you show interest, possibly it could be arranged that one or two P. T. A. meetings be devoted to a round table discussion of such problems with representatives of Gould present.

It would be most interesting to hear other opinions expressed.

Beaver Falls, Pa., News-Tribune:

"Taxpayers are consistent in one respect. None ever complains about the amount being too low."

"Anti-trust laws at the present time do not cover labor unions. But if matters take their possible course in the labor field, it may be necessary for Congress to give serious consideration to putting unions under the anti-trust statutes. From the nation's standpoint, the prospect of... a union transportation monopoly is fearsome enough in its basic features. But it is made far more unwholesome by the character of the unions and the leadership involved."

GOULD ACADEMY

Parents' Day

Feature event of Gould Academy's Parents' Day here this week and will be the Norway High-Gould Academy game, starting at 2 p. m. The Norway Rams are an improved club this year and have a chance of upsetting the Huskies for the first time in years. The Academy eleven has been weakened by injury to Jim Hill and Gerry Smith. Smith may be ready for this week end but Hill's ankle injury may keep him out for some time.

Norway has a victory over Paris and Gould had to rally to come from behind to beat the Cardinals. This should be a close, hard-fought game for the entertainment of the many parents who will be on the campus Saturday.

Cross Country Meet Here Friday

The postponed cross country meet between Gould and Kennett High will be run Friday at 3:30. The Fryeburg meeting originally scheduled for Friday has been postponed to a later date. This will be opening action for both teams. The delayed opening of the season resulted from the late opening of Kennett High School because of construction work at the North Conway school. Next week the Gould Indians will travel on Thursday to Portland High.

Gould Wins 18-12

Gould came from 12-0 behind to an 18-12 victory on the Gould field last Saturday over South Paris. The scrappy visitors outplayed the Academy eleven for nearly three periods as they led 12-0 with only three minutes of the third period remaining.

The first Paris score came late in the second period with King plugging over from the one half yard

One after a 50-yard march. The visitors had a 3-3 advantage in first downs during the first two periods.

Midway in the third period Pike of Paris blocked a Gould punt on the G. A. 40 yard line. In just seven plays, aided by a 27 yard pass to Gatchell, the Cardinals scored again. This time it was Gatchell from 4 yards out. Paris kicked off to Gould but the home team lost the ball on a fumble. Paris failed to gain and their fourth down punt was blocked on their own thirty. Jim Hill and Al Summer ripped off nice gains and Hill scored from 5 yards out, just before the third period ended.

On 4th down and two yards to go from midfield, Paris gambled but failed as the Gould line held. With Hill and Summer going for long gains Gould tied it up at Gould scored on a 34 yard run off his own right end.

The final score came after Gould recovered a fumble on Paris' 40 yard line. Summer carried on five plays for 21 yards. After one incomplete pass Ted White connected with Guy Whitten for a 19 yard Hill. At the same time, 10:06 a. m. T. D. pass with Whitten carrying the girls will play tennis matches against Kents Hill.

First downs were all even at 10 each. South Paris passed seven times making only one good for 19 yards and had three intercepted. Gould passed only three times but one was good for 19 yards and a T. D.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK AT CHURCH MEETING IN SOUTH BRIDGTON ON OCTOBER 18

The Rev. Charles Paul Heineman, a Congregational Christian missionary stationed at Tiruvadanai, South India, will speak at Union and Oxford Associations at South Bridgton on Thursday, October 18th. Mr. and Mrs. Heineman and their four children, ranging in age from 2 to 11, recently returned to the United States for furlough after an absence of six years.

A mechanical engineer, as well as an ordained minister, Mr. Heineman, with his wife's able assistance, has pioneered in the field of economic and social uplift. Mrs. Heineman, the former Mary Ellen Moore of Cape Cod, is a specialist in village education.

For several years Mr. Heineman was manager of the Trade School at Pasumai, an institution combining the training of Indian youth in carpentry, metal work and other crafts with character-building education.

The Heinemans moved to Tiruvadanai last year to study firsthand the social economic needs, as well as the resources, of the community. On their return to Tiruvadanai after their furlough, they hope to start new industries in the area to utilize some of its undeveloped resources.

Charles Paul Heineman was born in Illinois and educated at Rensselaer Institute, Troy N. Y. He worked as a mechanical and test engineer in New York and Connecticut before studying at the Hartford Theological Seminary in preparation for his service abroad. Mrs. Heineman, daughter of a Methodist minister, studied at the University of Iowa and the Kennedy School of Missions in Hartford. She went to India in 1950 under the Methodist Board and met Mr. Heineman on the mission field. Last year Mr. Heineman had the rare privilege of accompanying the eminent Vinoba Bhave, one of Gandhi's closest disciples, on a walking tour through the villages.

Experience shows that success is due less to ability than to zeal. The winner is he who gives himself to his work, body and soul.

Leadership ability, service in community work and a record of active participation as a 4-H Club member have won for Clinton C. Judkins, one day last week, the 4-H Club Agent of Franklin County, a national 4-H fellowship. He is one of four 1957-58 fellowship winners who will receive a $2000 study grant awarded by Massay-Harris-Ferguson, Inc.

His study program begins in September.

Through a cooperative arrangement with the Federal Extension Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Conant will be in Washington for nine months. Enroute to the capital, he will stop over in Chicago for a week to study the services of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work and visit several business concerns.

Conant helped to form the 4-H Club at the University of Maine where he received his bachelor of science degree in animal husbandry. He was on the college dairy judging team and belonged to the agriculture club and Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. An exceptional student as well as a good worker, he was on the dean's list for five semesters.

In 1956 he won the Kellar award for the most outstanding boy in his county, and the following year was chosen to receive the Alpha Zeta award given annually to a Maine 4-H boy.

Recently interested in dairy breeding and nutrition, Conant hopes eventually to become a specialist and work with 4-H youth. He organized a county dairy foundation which has become one of the most successful in the state.
